Coolidge Replies To Critics of U. S. Isolation Policy

No Informed Person Would Blame Us for Not Interfering in Affairs Which Are Peculiarly the Concern of Others to Adjust—Advocates Military Preparedness.

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP).—Turning from an acknowledgement of America's obligation to those who served her in the World War to a review of American relations with Europe since the close of the great conflict, President Coolidge last night made vigorous reply to those of the old world who have criticized the nation's traditional policy of isolation.

The chief executive spoke before an audience which had gathered under the auspices of the American Legion to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the signing of the armistice. He lauded the service of General Pershing and Admiral Sims, detailed the economic results of the war and what he considered its "spiritual" benefits; reiterated his stand for the maintenance of adequate naval defenses and entered a fervent appeal for the constitution of world peace.

Declaring that the question of America's duty to Europe had received a wide discussion on both sides of the Atlantic, Mr. Coolidge asserted that America had acknowledged the existence of such duties and had tried to meet them.

"They are not all on one side, however," he said, "they are mutual. We have sometimes been reproached for lecturing Europe, but probably ours are not the only people who sometimes engage in gratuitous criticism and advice. We have been charged with pursuing a policy of isolation. We are not the only people either who desire to give their attention to their own affairs. It is quite evident that both of these claims can not be true. I think no informed person at home or abroad would blame us for not intervening in affairs which are peculiarly the concern of others to adjust, or, when we are asked for help, for stating clearly the terms on which we are willing to respond."

True Position of America.

Mr. Coolidge said the American position could "truthfully be characterized as one of patience, consideration, restraint and assistance". He declared that we had accepted a settlement of obligations not in accordance with what was due "but in accordance with the merciful principle of what our debtors could pay"; that, when asked, America has given advice for constructive purposes, has given of its resources, at the same time refraining from all unsought intervention or intervention which it was thought would be ineffective.

Of America's European critics, the President said that "if they would give a little more attention to our history and judge us a little more closely by our own record, and especially find out in what directions we believe our real interests to lie, much which they now appear to find obscure would be quite apparent."

The prevention of war, in Mr. Coolidge's opinion, merits every precaution and every honorable sacrifice. Military preparation, he said, had never proved sufficient, but he accompanied this statement with an asertion that if the nations of Europe had neglected their defenses the war probably would have come much sooner.

Military Preparation a Duty.

"We can have military preparation without assuming a military spirit," he said. "It is our duty to ourselves and to the cause of civilization, to the preservation of domestic tranquility, to our orderly and lawful relations with foreign people, to maintain an edequate army and navy."

In this connection the President outlined the naval needs of the United States in view of the nation's extensive coast line, outlying possessions, foreign commerce and investments, and particularly its lack of fueling stations and of merchant vessels capable of mounting five and six-inch guns. He declared that, based on needs, the United States is entitled to more warships than a nation which has these advantages.

The President reviewed extensively the efforts of the last decade toward reduction of naval armaments and the development and acceptance of the Kellogg-Briand treaty outlawing war. This pact, he said, "is the most complete and will be the most effective instrument for peace that was ever devised."

World War Cost to America.

Mr. Coolidge estimated that, with what has already been paid out what is already apparent for the future, the final cost of the World War to America will be nearly one hundred billion dollars. To this he added an assertion that "whatever may be thought or said of us, we know, and every informed person should know, that we reaped no selfish benefit from the war."

America's benefit from the war, he said, were represented by spiritual rather than material values.

"The whole standard of our existence was raised," he added. "The conscience and the faith of the nation were quickened with new life. The pepole awoke to the drum beats of a new destiny."

Ralph Celande, brother of August.

The dead all were found in the wreckage of the automobile, which had been carried for some distance by the locomotive. The two injured men were placed on the train and taken to an Albany hospital.

The accident occurred on the Grove street crossing of the Delaware and Hudson railroad.

Two Incendiary Fires Sunday

Firemen Called to U. & D. Freight House and Later to Palen's Stables —Damage by Fire Not Heavy as Fires Were Discovered in Time.

Two fires of incendiary origin kept the fire department busy early Sunday morning, and fortunately both fires were discovered before the flames had made any great headway.

The first fire was at the Ulster & Delaware railroad freight house on Cornell street, where a fire had been started under the building. The fire communicated to a large steel tank containing asphalt paint which exploded with a terrific report. The fire worked its way up the siding and went through the roof. An alarm was turned in from Box 61 at 1:53 o'clock, and the prompt discovery of the fire and the quick response of the fire department saved the freight house from destruction.

As Policemen Camp and Snehloff were leaving the scene of the freight house fire at 3:35 o'clock Sunday morning they discovered fire in Elmer Palen's barn on Field Court. A burlap bag that had been stuffed in one of the barn windows had been set on fire. Again Box 61 sounded its alarm and the fire department responded quickly. The damage at the barn was slight. The 16 horses in the stable were removed from the barn.

Farm Bureau Canvass Starts

The time allowed for return of memberships by mail has elapsed. A group of selected canvassers will go forth and secure the renewal of old members and the names of new members. The return of memberships by mail has been very gratifying. The total reached is 358. This is ahead of last year for the same number of elapsed days.

The communities of Hurley and Ulster Park are tie with 23, paid by mail. Milton is second with 29 members. The next three highest are Marlborough 28, New Paltz 20 and Wallkill 18. These figures are increasing every day.

The campaign will officially close on December 1. On December 5, the annual Farm and Home Bureau Association meeting will be held, followed by a banquet in celebration of the completion of the campaign.

Common Council Canvassed Vote

The common council met at 10 o'clock this morning at the Municipal Building as a board of canvassers to canvass the vote cast Election Day on the Sunday movie referendum.

The total number of votes cast for the proposition was 9,149. Of that number 4,860 were in favor and 4,289 against. The proposition was adopted by a majority of 571 votes.

No other business was transacted and the council then adjourned.

Ballot Boxes Sent To Poughkeepsie

The Poughkeepsie board of elections were greatly surprised when they received by express from the first and second districts of the town of New Paltz, Ulster county, two large enrollment boxes shortly after the election on Tuesday of last week. They had no use for them and promptly turned them over to the sheriff of Dutchess county.

The Dutchess county sheriff who had read in the newspapers that there was some question as to whether Roosevelt or Ottinger had been elected governor promptly telegraphed Governor Smith at Albany regarding the receipt of the two enrollment boxes and asking what disposition he was to make of them. The governor telegraphed him to turn them over to the sheriff of Ulster county and no one else.

Saturday afternoon Sherif Arthur Rice went to Poughkeepsie after the two boxes and turned them over today to the Ulster county board of elections and received a receipt for the boxes.

The election officials of the town of New Paltz had made a mistake in addressing the boxes to the wrong election board but it will have no effect on the counting of the ballots for all the boxes contained were the enrollment blanks.

Tentative Juror In Stewart Trial Was Approached

Sunday By a Man, Who Gave the Name of McGinnis, and Asked Whether He Would "Hold Out" In the Case—Caldwell Removed from the Box.

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP).—Robert Y. Caldwell, a tentative juror in the perjury trial of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, told Justice Jennings Bailey in District of Columbia Supreme court today that he was approached yesterday by a man who asked him whether he would "hold out" in the case.

Caldwell said the man had given the name of "McGinnis" and when asked for details of the meeting said, "I got rid of him."

The incident developed early in the selection of a jury to try Stewart on a perjury indictment of three counts based on testimony by him before the Senate public lands committee during the Continental Trading Company phase of the Teapot Dome investigation. Stewart is alleged to have testified that he knew nothing of the Continental Company and its transactions, although he had received $759,000 in bonds from that company.

District Attorney George A. Rover and Frank Hogan, chief of defense counsel, conferred with Justice Bailey then, and Rover declared the description of McGinnis given by Caldwell tallied closely with that of a man he had in mind. Justice Bailey asked the 24 other talesmen collectively whether they had been approached, but none answered.

The incident developed early in the selection of a jury to try Stewart on a perjury indictment of three counts based on testimony by him before the Senate public lands committee.

Removed From the Box.

The defense challenged Caldwell and he was removed from the box. Hogan sought permission for himself and Stewart to examine those in the box. This was denied, and Hogan noted an exception in each instance.

Rover announced that the prosecution witnesses would include Senator Walsh, of Montana, Senator Nye, of North Dakota, Ingram Mack, assistant clerk of the senate committee, and three of the senate stenographers who took down Stewart's testimony before the investigators.

After Caldwell was excused from the jury box, he took a seat in the court room and later left to be photographed in front of the court house. There he talked about the "young man" whom he said had visited him at his residence late yesterday.

"He asked me if I was a Catholic," he said, "and if I knew Mr. Hogan. He asked me if I was on the jury and if I would stick together with the rest." He declared the visitor had stayed with him only a few minutes and had not offered him any money.

"I showed him out of my door," he continued, "because I was just going out at the time. He told me his name was 'McGinnis'."

Although he had told the court that the visitor wanted to know whether he would "hold out", outside the court Caldwell told newspapermen that the expression used by the man was whether he would "stick together with the rest".

Hanley was being detained in Herkimer county jail and Gibbs was being detained by State Troopers pending inquests in both cases. According to members of the hunting parties to which the dead men belonged, both men were mistaken for deer and shot from behind at a distance of about 100 yards.

Three Cases in Police Court

Jean Lamar to Go to Elmira Reformatory for Violation of Parole —Frank Slater Held on Assault Charge.

Saturday morning Mrs. Frank Slater, who is now residing in Haverstraw, called to see Judge Shufeldt in police court and said she was anxious to obtain her clothes from the custody of her husband. She said they were not living together. She came to Kingston from Haverstraw with a deputy sheriff. Officer William J. Reardon was assigned to go with Mrs. Slater to 338 Foxhall avenue, where Mr. Slater was stopping, to see that she obtained her clothing.

Half an hour later they returned to police headquarters together with Frank Slater, who was bleeding from a cut on the head. Officer Reardon was also spotted with blood. From the story as told, when the wife entered the house for her clothing the husband assaulted her and when the officer went to her assistance he is alleged to have assaulted the officer, who in self protection was forced to use his club to subdue Slater.

Slater was taken over to the City of Kingston Hospital by Sergeant Phinney where the wound in the head was sewed up. He was then placed uder arrest on a charge of assault in the third degree in assaulting his wife.

He was released under bail and the hearing adjourned to this morning when another adjournment was taken to Thursday morning, Slater pleading not guilty and saying he desired to engage the services of a lawyer.

Lemar Goes to Elmira.

The hearing in the case of W. J. Duffy, more widely known as Jean Lemar, on a charge of passing a bad check on Commissioner John A. The shot from the gun struck the water of the creek, which deflected them.

Joseph Albrecht was out in the river Sunday with Harry Albrecht, after duck, and they were returning home. Harry was rowing the boat and while approaching the dock at Ravine and Abeel street the gun was discharged. Sass, Coughlin and several others were standing on the dock and the shot, hitting the water first, were deflected and some of the shot struck the two standing on the dock. The shot inflicted slight flesh wounds.

Officer Entrott placed young Albrecht under arrest on a charge of discharging firearms within the city limits. This morning in police court young Albrecht was warned by Judge Shufeldt to see to it hereafter that when returning from a hunting trip to be sure that his weapon was unloaded. The youth was discharged with a suspended sentence.

Woodstock Man Aboard Ship Sunk In Atlantic

Ralph Whitehead, Son of R. R. Whitehead, Passenger On Steamer Vestris, Which Sinks 300 Miles Off Hampton Roads—No Word Received From Him — Passengers and Crew Abandon Ship.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Lamport and Holt liner Vestris, sinking 300 miles off Hampton Roads, was abandoned by passengers and crew at 1:25 o'clock this afternoon.

In the message picked up by the Radio Corporation of America announcing abandonment of the ship it was said that no steamer had yet reached the Vestris. There had been previous reports that the Japanese vessel Ohio Maru was standing by.

The weather was reported moderately rough as the 129 passengers and the crew of 210 went over the side and took to the lifeboats. The message included the information that the radio operator was also leaving the ship as he did not believe he could get any further messages through.

This meant that there would be no further information of the fate of the passengers and crew until one of the many vessels rushing to its asssistance reached the scene.

Woodstock Man a Passenger.

Ralph Whitehead, a son of R. R. Whitehead of Woodstock, is a passenger on the ill-fated steamer. Mr. Whitehead sailed Saturday on the Vestris bound for Rio Janeiro, Brazil.

Inquiry over the telephone with the young man's father at the family home in Woodstock this afternoon brought out the fact that he had received no word from his son as yet, and The Associated Press dispatch received by The Freeman was the first news he had of the sinking of the vessel.

Freighter Announced Standing By.

The Lamport and Holt Line announced at 12:55 o'clock this afternoon that the passengers of its sinking steamer, the Vestris, had taken to the life boats.

As the passengers were reported taking to the boats it was announced that the Japanese freighter Ohio Maru, from Seattle for New York, was standing by ready to take them aboard.

News that the passengers were being taken off and that the Japanese vessel was in a position to give aid was received by the Lamport and Holt Line, owner of the Vestris, from its Bermuda agent. Nearly three hours after the ship had sent out her first SOS flashes describing her position as extremely critical.

More than a dozen vessels, including five coast guard cutters, set their courses for the scene but the Ohio Maru was apparently the first to reach the spot.

The Vestris's wireless, which had worked frantically during the late morning hours, was still in operation at 12:45 p. m.

Sends S O S Message.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—The liner Vestris, bound for Barbadoes from New York with 129 passengers and crew of 210, is in distress at sea, said an S O S message received shortly after 10 o'clock this morning by the Radio Corporation of America.

Another message said that the Vestris had developed a 32-degree list, that the starboard decks were under water, and that she was lying on the beam end, unable to proceed. The sea was reported moderately rough.

The message said they would have to take to the lifeboats "any minute now."

The ship is a Lamport and Holt Liner.

The distress message read:

"S. S. Vestris Lamport and Holt Line latitude 37.35 north, longitude 71.8 west requires immediate assistance.

The Vestris sailed Saturday.

The vessel's position was about 300 miles off Hampton Roads.

The Vestris has a registered tonnage of 19,494, her length 495½ feet.

Among the passengers were:

Mrs. Sarah J. Goodman, Tarrytown, N. Y.

The Vestris left New York Saturday with a general cargo of 6,000 tons and a consignment of mail in addition to her passengers. She was bound for Barbadoes and South American ports.

Although details of her predicament were lacking, it was assumed that she ran into the severe gales that swept the north Atlantic coast on Saturday night. And it was thought that her cargo might have shifted.

Reported Leaking Badly

Philadelphia, Nov. 12 (AP).—A wireless message intercepted here indicated that the steamer Vestris needed immediate help. The vessel gave her position as latitude 37.35 N., longitude approximately 71.08 west.

The Vestris was reported as "leaking badly." The steamer Santa Barbara reported herself as close by and proceeding to the Vestris at 17 knots.

Destroy Statues Of British Kings

Dublin, Irish Free State, Nov. 12 (AP).—Explosion of three bombs on the morning of Armistice Day and the later discovery of machine guns and ammunition were being investigated today by police in an effort to determine whether there was any connection between the two.

The bombs were exploded in an attempt to destroy the statues of British kings. Two of the statues were slightly damaged. No one was injured.

A portion of the pedestal of an equestrian statute of King William III was broken and a hoof of the horse was blown away. Many windows in the vicinity of College Green were shattered. Civic guards failed to capture two men they saw leaving the vicinity.

A memorial fountain to King Edward VII in Berbert Park, Ballsbridge, two miles from Dublin, was badly loosened by an explosion. It probably will have to be rebuilt. The statue of the king was only slightly damaged.

The statue of King George I in St. Stephen's Green escaped serious damage when a bomb exploded at its base.

Police discovered a veritable arsenal in an abandoned brick works at Inchicore, near Dublin. Among the supplies were three machine guns, 36 bombs, 300 detonators and several thousand rounds of rifle and revolver ammunition and other military equipment.

Scuffles occurred when Republican sympathizers attempted to seize union jacks carried by former service men in a parade in Phoenix Park.

Stomach Disorders First Revealed by Coated Tongue

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90% of all sickness starts with stomach and bowel trouble.

A coated tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders which lead to so many kinds of serious illness. It tells why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

Coating on the tongue is a sign that you need Tanlac—the medicine which has helped thousands who were physical wrecks from stomach and bowel troubles—who had "tried everything" in vain and about given up hope.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Conference of Dutchess P.-T. A.

Kingstonians Attend Meeting at Newburgh—Mrs. Russell Says Better Understanding of Association's Work Will Lead to Better Results.

The fourteenth conference of the P.-T. A. presidents of Dutchess county was held in the dining room of Trinity M. E. Church at Poughkeepsie Saturday. The Dutchess county chairman, Mrs. Percy Reynolds of Poughkeepsie, introduced the fourth state vice president, Mrs. Harry Simmons of Newburgh; the state founders' day chairman, Mrs. Selden H. Hall of Poughkeepsie; the Poughkeepsie district chairman, Mrs. Arthur H. Russell; the district secretary, Mrs. W. R. Anderson of Kingston; the district treasurer, Mrs. John R. Gardner of Poughkeepsie; the district press chairman, Mrs. Alice Van Leuvan, and the Child Welfare Magazine chairman, Mrs. W. P. Restilloo of Middletown, and the Orange county chairman, Mrs. Fred Hopper of Newburgh. She then turned the conference over to the district chairman, Mrs. Russell.

Mrs. Russell wittily remarked that people sometimes listened to a long sermon by some pastor and then the choir got up and sang "Some Time We'll Understand" and that was the trouble in P.-T. A. work, so many did not understand what it was all about. She thought a good many were beginning to understand and that she herself had found out one great secret of the work which was getting along with people. She expected that when the parents understood the teachers and the teachers the parents, they will get on so much better together. She believes that mothers do not always give the best that is in them to their families and better children cannot be produced until we have better mothers. The standards for teachers are being steadily raised but there are no standards that parents have to come up to and there is a crying need for trained parenthood. She stated that the slogan in P.-T. A. work this year is "Know Your Job". She made an appeal in P.-T. A. presidents to read carefully all the letters sent them by state officers and chairmen as the writers are busy women and their letters are painstakingly written with the purpose of being helpful and instructive.

Mrs. Russell told about 12 students applying for help from the State Student Loan Fund after the money was all loaned out and the chairman of this fund, Mrs. P. B. Herrick of Kenwood, loaned money they did not have on faith. A collection amounting to $320 was taken up at the State Convention at Niagara Falls and several pledged $25 in memory of a lost child so the total amount raised towards this fund was between $800 and $1,000. All the P.-T. A's. were urged to give life memberships in the state organization to teachers or other workers they wanted to honor as the money goes into this worthy fund.

Mrs. Van Leuvan asked that all especially good press clipping books be sent to her by April in order that the eight best ones may be selected for exhibition at the National Convention to be held in Washington, D. C., in May. She added that the Poughkeepsie District Press Book had received honorable mention at the State Convention and received a red star at the National Convention which meant that it was the second best one on exhibition. Mrs. Kestelloo appealed to the P.-T. A's. to subscribe to the "Child Welfare Magazine" for all their officers.

Mrs. Gardner explained that the district dues are payable in advance before January 1, 1929.

Mrs. Anderson appealed to the presidents to bring or send their questionnaires to the Spring Conference and to write upon the back of them any "high lights" they wish to report at the conference.

Mrs. Russell closed the conference with the thought that the work of the P.-T. A. was not so much to raise money as to make characters and build lives.

Other P.-T. A. members from Kingston attending the Conference were Miss Isabel Thompson and Miss Mabel Hale of the faculty of No. 2 School.

The Orange County Conference will be held at the Marilyn Miller Tea Room in Newburgh on Friday, November 16.

BRITISH COURT DECIDES "PICKLED" FISH NOT FISH

London, (AP).—What is a fish? The British courts are likely to be called upon to answer the question.

The Stepney Borough Council has decided the point temporarily.

Dried salmon, pickled herrings, bloaters, kippers, salt fish, popular on Good Fridays and other "fast" days, apparently are not fish.

All other fish are fish.

The Stepney Borough council's decision in the matter has its amusing side, but it has angered the fish traders of Wentworth street, which adjoins Petticoat Lane (Middlesex street)' for these traders have been refused a renewal of their licenses on the grounds of contamination and want of space.

The continued sale of "pickled" fish is allowed, and none of the traders in other wares is subject to the prohibition.

A stall-to-stall search was made by a councillor inspector, accompanied by police constables, and names and addresses of traders continuing to sell "fish" were taken.

The fish traders claim that Wentworth street was a fish market exclusively 156 years ago.

An appeal is to be taken.

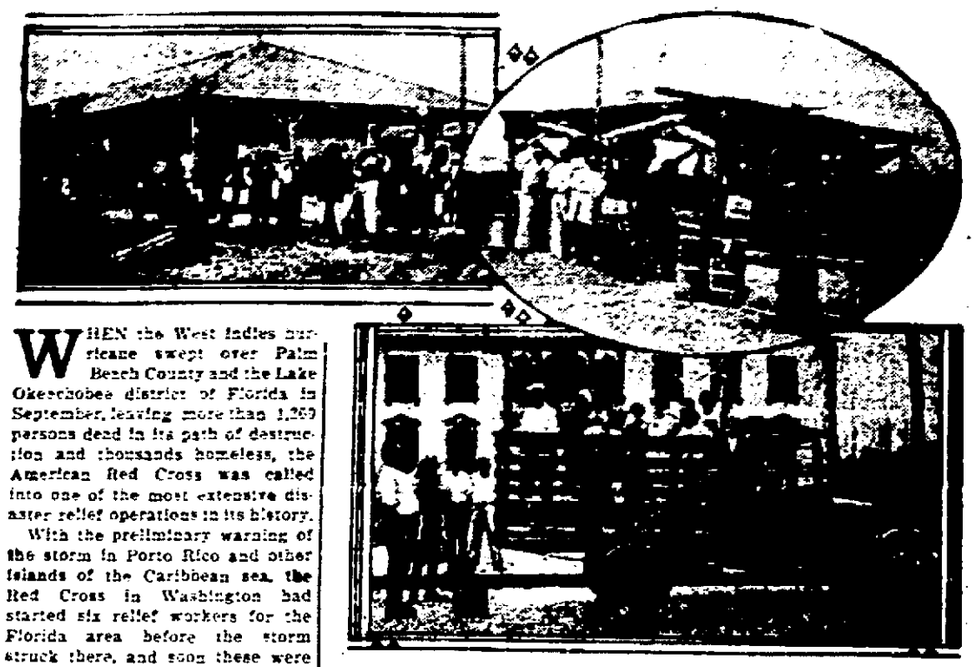
Florida's Homeless From Hurricane Receive Prompt Red Cross Relief



WHEN the West Indies hurricane swept over Palm Beach County and the Lake Okeechobee district of Florida in September, leaving more than 1,260 persons dead in its path of destruction and thousands homeless, the American Red Cross was called into one of the most extensive disaster relief operations in its history.

With the preliminary warning of the storm in Porto Rico and other islands of the Caribbean sea, the Red Cross in Washington had started six relief workers for the Florida area before the storm struck there, and soon these were joined by a staff of doctors, nurses and other trained relief workers. For thirty days there was a daily average of 15,000 persons dependent upon the Red Cross for sustenance, shelter and clothing.

At the same time a large staff of Red Cross workers and nurses had been sent to Porto Rico, where for several weeks the organization was feeding and clothing more than 400,000 men, women and children. Here shelter was not such a great requirement, but the spread of contagion became a serious matter and a large group of nurses had to be sent by the Red Cross.

The Red Cross, through proclamation by President Coolidge, also president of the Red Cross, and Judge John Barton Payne, chairman, asked the public to contribute a minimum of $5,000,000 for the relief of the sufferers in the hurricane. Within a short period of time, this sum had been given by the public, and was oversubscribed.

Thirty days after the storm, the Red Cross in Florida had returned a great many refugees to their homes, which had been made habitable, the feeding problem was not so great and those still homeless were gathered in two tent colonies near West Palm Beach. But the great problem of rehabilitation still remained. A. L. Schafer, director of the Florida disaster relief for the Red Cross, estimated that 11,560 families were affected by the storm, through loss of their homes, damage to crops, etc., and might require assistance. The rehabilitation assistance given by the Red Cross included food, feed for live stock and poultry, clothing, medical aid, seed, household furnishings, building and repairs, live stock and poultry to restock farms.

This disaster occurred after the close of the Red Cross fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1928. In that fiscal year the Red Cross had given assistance in 66 disasters in the United States and possessions, and 22 disasters abroad. In each instance the Red Cross met the call from its own funds and did not appeal for relief from the public. It was able to meet these needs from its national resources, which are provided largely through the annual membership campaign. This year the Red Cross asks for 5,000,000 members in the roll call, from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, November 11 to 22.

Laid Up With Rheumatism For More Than Eight Months

Nearby Resident Gets First Relief Through Use of New Herbal Compound Recently Introduced Here.

Never a day passes now, but that someone is telling the Nu-Erb man at McBride Drug Store, 312 Wall street, of the wonderful good they have obtained through the use of the great herbal preparation, Dr. French's Nu-Erb, which is meeting with success in treating disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Mrs. Charles Smith, R.D.4, Box 115, Kingston, N. Y., relates the following experience.

"For more than eight months my husband has been laid up in bed with rheumatism of the joints and muscles. They were so sore and painful that he could not move his arms or limbs. His blood did not seem to circulate properly through his body, as his hands and feet were always cold. As he had no other apparent health troubles he was a puzzle to those who treated him and he could not get anything to give him relief from this suffering.

"When he heard of Nu-Erb he decided to give it a trial and we were surprised when it soon started to help him. He has been using it three weeks now and has experienced the first relief he has had. He is now more free from pain than he has been any time during those long months and can move his arms and limbs freely. It is surely a wonderful medicine and if it will bring relief to a case such as his it surely should help others who suffer from those troubles."

Nu-Erb is the ideal tonic and system cleanser. It corrects digestive disorders, strengthens weak kidneys, rouses a lazy liver, quiets the nerves, relieves constipation and drives poisonous waste matter from the system. Its great merit lies in the fact that it is made only from the pure herbal extracts of twelve medicinal herbs, roots, barks and leaves and contains no harmful or habit forming drugs.

McBride's Drug Store, 312 Wall street, is headquarters in Kingston for Nu-Erb. Go see the specialist now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

283 Pay on a Million Income

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP).—Two hundred and eighty-three individuals in the United States counted their incomes for 1927 in seven figures and of these ten received more than $5,000,000. The bureau of internal revenue is sponsor for these statistics, which were made public today in connection with its annual report on income tax returns.

Incomes of more than a million dollars were reported for 1926 by 231 persons, with the 1927 figures showing 52 additions to this select class. But while there was an increase in the total receiving a million or more, there was a drop in the number reporting incomes of more than $5,000,000. Ten reported such incomes for 1927 while there were fourteen in the statistics for 1926.

The ten with incomes of more than $5,000,000 for 1927 had a combined net income of $88,995,242 and together paid a net tax of $14,568,470.

Simplicity Is Keynote for Evening Fashions

There is an air of Grecian simplicity about evening costumes for fall and winter which is in curious contrast to the really elaborate styling to which they are submitted, notes a fashion writer in the Cleveland News.

This is quite evident from an analysis of the determining elements in all of the Paris showings. The prescription for chic in the robe de soir is apparently the employment of many and diverse themes so carefully screened as to simulate simplicity.

The dipping hemline is practically universal throughout the realm of evening dresses. It appears at the sides, the front and in the back—in greatest numbers at the latter point. There is clearly nothing new about this theme, yet it is being so persistently exploited in Paris that despite its conventionalism it is destined to persist as a leading factor in the new formal fashions.

Several different type bodices are sponsored for evening wear, but there is a concerted tendency toward the semi-molded princess line which cannot be overlooked.

The decolletage of the formal evening gown this winter will be more extreme than it has been in many years. Beginning with the invisible shoulder straps of Chanel and the extremely low back cut-outs offered by Patou and Molyneux and ending with the Louiseboulanger cut, which is quite square to the waistline, no post-war year has witnessed nearly such extremes. These themes have passed the problem stage, as Paris is eagerly adopting them, and you may count upon this extreme decolletage as one of the essentials of the robe du soir.

Shoes Should Harmonize Perfectly With Costume

Shoes must be ever so simple in line to follow the new path of footwear chic, but they must be in color and material to harmonize perfectly with the costume. Women who follow this new path consider the line of the shoe as relatively unimportant—providing the line is simple and becoming. But they give meticulous attention to the selection of the smart materials—smooth calf, rich suedes and the new snakeskin and lizard with the glazed finish for daytime, colored suedes for evening, with matching suede bags. And if the shoe is not brown, black, gunmetal or serge blue, to wear with daytime costumes of these same colors, it may be in bottle green or dark red to match other accessories.

Few Changes in Styles of Sleeves This Season

Only a few changes have been made in the styles of sleeves since last season. For daytime and informal evening wear the long tight-fitting sleeve is usual. Lucien Lelong uses small buttons to fasten the sleeve from wrist to elbow and cuts the neck round, square or pointed.

Redfern is making some new styles of sleeves. One, cut wide at the hand, is slashed to the elbow. Suzanne Talbot adds a flaring cuff at the elbow of a tight-fitting coat sleeve. Beer makes his coat sleeves straight and slightly wider at the bottom. Drecoll is showing an evening coat with sleeves closed at the wrist and upturned flaring cuffs.

Suede Belts Being Worn on Dainty Evening Gowns

Wide belts of soft suede are being used for evening frocks in lace or moire after Patou. They are worn a little higher than was the fashion rule last season—just above the hips—and are in colors like blonde, Patou green, lilac and mauve-rose that tone with the material of the dresses. The suede is crushed like fabric to form a becoming line, and the buckles are studded with rhinestones or large colored brilliants.

Benefit Party For Exchange

A card party for the benefit of the Woman's Exchange is to be held in the Governor Clinton Hotel on Tuesday, November 20, in the afternoon.

The affair is under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Gregory, Mrs. David Burgevin, Mrs. William D. Brinnier, and Mrs. S. D. Hiltebrant.

There are no single tickets for sale but anyone desiring a table may telephone to any one of the above ladies for particulars. Delightful prizes of an unusual nature will arouse interest and refreshments will be served from the coffee shop of the Governor Clinton.

The Woman's Exchange is one of the long-established philanthropies of the city. It provides a market for home work of the women of Ulster county, and offers a means of livelihood to more than 80 consignors. This little shop is not self-supporting because the profits do not go into the business but go to the women who put their work up for sale. The deficiency is made up each year by a group of the prominent women in Kingston who are called associate members.

The Exchange has had no entertainment of a public nature for some years, and this card party on Tuesday of next week will be welcomed as an agreeable means of helping this philanthropy and at the same time as a social diversion of particular interest.

Soap in Olden Times

In the Thirteenth century Marseilles (France) became the center for the manufacture of soap from olive oil, and this art spread to England in the Fourteenth century. Pliny (A. D. 79) described soap as used by the Germans, and the Old testament also records the use of it.

Weeds and Hay Fever

Government authorities have found that the common ragweed is to be found in some parts of Colorado. The great ragweed is also found in a few sections of the Pacific and Mountain states. The western ragweed is so common in some parts of California that it is an important factor in hay fever in that state. The most important hay-fever weeds of the Pacific and Mountain states are the wormwoods.

Large Horses

The largest horse ever known is said to be the Equus giganteus, the skeleton of which was found in Texas in 1903. From the animal's teeth it was estimated that the horse would have measured 18 hands. The weight was not estimated. A percheron horse in France was known to be 17½ hands and weighed over 2,000 pounds.

Cured the Drunkards

In days gone by a park in Hoboken, N. J., was a favorite hangout for those wishing to sleep off a drunk. To the astonishment of the police the number of drunks in the park rapidly dwindled. Their astonishment was not so great when they learned that a practical joker had been going about the park painting the noses of the drunks a brilliant pink in a waterproof paint.

KINGSTON, N. Y., NOV. 12, 1928.

VOTELESS CITIZENS.

While the rest of the country was busy exercising its electoral franchise on November 6, the District of Columbia observed "Humiliation Day." The 528,600 citizens of that community are beginning to get a little restive under their unique situation as a city without a vote.

Among last Tuesday's expressions of discontent was a big demonstration before the District Building, with flags and floats pointing out the disenfranchisement of the citizenry. Society girls "bombed" the city with toy balloons bearing the words, "Give Washington National Representation." At various places about the streets where voting booths might logically stand were placed ballot boxes draped in black mourning. A large float, placarded with pertinent remarks about the district's taxation without representation, was exhibited with the White House for a background.

A large number of organizations cooperated in the demonstration. First there were the Joint Committee on National Representation for the District of Columbia and the Voteless District of Columbia League of Women, particularly devoted to this cause. Aiding and supporting them in their protest were the local Bar Association, Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Real Estate Board, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, Federation of Citizen Associations and various others.

Of course, there's nothing to prevent these semi-citizens from conducting all the straw votes they want. Still, that would no doubt pall, in time. Why not let them in on the great national sport?

THE MARVELOUS McPHERSON.

Following the reports that Rev. Aimee McPherson's "hot Gospel" had had a chilling effect in England comes an interesting account of one of her "hot" performances in Los Angeles, indicating to what extent sensationalists of her type are ready to go in order to draw an entertainment-seeking crowd. The account reads in part:

There was much to remember about the service, including gold braid, whistled hymns, a choir of lady gobs and a graphic electrical portrayal of sunrise on Judgment Day. Not the least impressive feature of the evening was Aimee herself. It was just about this time that the evangelist decided to call her institution a lighthouse. Being under the impression that lighthouses are manned by Admirals, she dressed herself and her assistants in skirted replicas of the most striking uniforms of the United States Navy. However, the moment that promises to stay longest in my memory occurred when the fair evangelist was leading in prayer. She voiced a very touching petition and accompanied it by violent gestures to the spotlight man, who had failed to give her the proper illumination.

Then follows this curious, wholly unexpected statement hinting of the possibility of an amazing masquerade: "Despite her detailed autobiography, an air of mystery still surrounds Mrs. McPherson and adds to the interest of the populace. Indeed, when I was in Los Angeles," writes Elsie McCormick in the New York World, "I heard quite a number of responsible people express the opinion that the evangelist was really Lon Chaney."

FEWER SUICIDES.

A medical writer finds that suicides are decreasing markedly. Back in 1908 there were 20.6 deaths by suicide per 100,000 people in this country. In 1920 the ratio had dropped to 10.2 per 100,000. It remains low. The decrease, he believes, is accounted for largely by economic improvement. In hard times many people give up the battle of life. In good times there is less moral discouragement.

Another cause of improvement, he says, is better health. The young seldom do away with themselves, because they have more physical vigor and therefore more natural enjoyment of life. Suicides under the age of 15 are almost unknown. Between 15 and 19 they average only two per 100,000.

Between 70 and 80 comes the highest average of all, 34 per 100,000.

A few years ago there was talk of an epidemic of suicides. Statistics were furnished to exhibit this menace. Since efforts have been almost forgotten, probably because the interest has disappeared. With the increased general well-being, intended greater material prosperity and better health, came optimism and appreciation of life's values, and more courage to endure the ills. It looks as if our economic leaders and our doctors have not been given the credit they deserve for making life more worth living.

A nature lover was horrified last month to see in the window of a city florist's shop, for sale, blue fringed gentians. "No lover of nature," he says, "would buy fringed gentians or pick them." They do not stand transplanting. They do not thrive in civilized gardens. They are destroyed by picking. In fact, they are becoming exceedingly rare in places where they used to be abundant, just because selfish persons have gathered them. Some wild flowers and weeds can be transplanted and tamed. They then add variety to gardens. If they thrive under such an altered life, no one should complain. But the delicate blooms from Nature's own gardens, that cannot stand civilized ways, should be left strictly alone. They add infinite beauty to the woods, fields, meadows or brooksides where they live. They should be viewed and enjoyed there, without being greedily plucked.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BY

WHEN EMERGENCIES ARISE.

You get into an argument with some one about politics, sport, religious or other subjects, or perhaps you come through an exciting or depressing experience of some kind, and you find a "funny" or foreign taste in the mouth. You couldn't describe the taste, but you have experienced it a number of times.

Perhaps you feel slightly sick at the stomach, your face is pale, with "beads of perspiration" on the forehead.

Research men at Harvard are trying to show that the little ductless adrenal glands, situated on top of the kidneys, are a factor in producing these results, due to emotional disturbances.

They tell us that reactions which follow emotional disturbances tend to produce responses in us that are likely to benefit us.

There may be an outpouring of adrenal extract from these adrenal glands into the blood stream and consequent changes in the blood flow; blood sugar may be increased in amount because if the individual has to fight, defend himself, or even run away, he will need this extra sugar for that muscular effort he will have to put forth.

Drs. Isquierdo and Cannon report that emotional excitement, for just short periods of time, is followed quickly by a pronounced increase in the number of red corpuscles in the blood.

The above means that you and I go about our daily occupations with the ordinary cares and little worries, joys and excitement, and the ordinary processes in the body take care of us without any outward reaction.

However with emergencies such as extreme fear, a severe loss, a need for some unusual muscular effort, Nature stimulates the ductless glands, the adrenal gland and the spleen particularly, and blood with an increased number of red corpuscles, and an increased amount of sugar, is there in your vessels ready to help you. Just think of that for a moment. When extreme needs arise, and they must arise in all lives, there is this "friendly force" behind that body of yours.

MODENA.

Modena, Nov. 12.—The Rev. J. Robert Halmshaw, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of New Paltz, addressed people at Hasbrouck Memorial Hall Wednesday evening, choosing as his topic, his recent trip to England, from whence he came sixteen years ago. The Rev. Mr. Halmshaw aptly described amusing incidents relating to the voyage and the pleasure he derived from visiting his native home and lands. English customs, Swiss scenery, etc., came in for their share of interesting discussions and the Rev. Mr. Halmshaw's speech met with favorable approval by those who heard the discourse. At the conclusion of the Rev. Mr. Halmshaw's address, George Dusinberre introduced Mr. Kirk, a representative of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, who spoke of the merits of that organization, the work they were accomplishing and the high percentage of membership in Ulster County, being second highest in the state of New York. For this quota he congratulated those affiliated with the Bureau's work. In connection with the Farm Bureau, two motion pictures were shown of two reels each. The first two entitled "The Transformation" dealing with the subject, "The Use of Lumber on the Farm," a pamphlet of which can be secured by request from Washington, D. C. This book explains many useful and beautiful features of the use of lumber, illustrated throughout. The second picture was "Fair and Warmer" depicting the advantages of modern heating devices over the coal hod era. At the beginning of the meeting the Rev. Wilford Van Iderstine of Modena Methodist Church conducted devotional services and at the conclusion expressed pleasure at the people's responding attendance, and announced that Wednesday evening of each week similar services and entertainment would be held at Hasbrouck Hall. Everyone in the community is invited to attend.

FOCH SAYS NAPOLEON STILL GUARDS FRANCE

Paris, (AP).—Napoleon, the great soldier, gets a new tribute of admiration from Marshal Foch, the generalissimo of the greatest army the world has ever seen. In a little volume, "A Soldier's Words," just published, the marshal comments, with approval on the methods of the Emperor.

The chief of the great war says this to the Little Corporal:

"Sire, sleep in peace; even in your tomb you still work for France."

Several slightly used and shopworn Frigidaires at reduced prices. Call Mr. King, Kingston 1400. —Advertisement.

It's human nature

Pride in personal appearance is inherent in all of us. No one wants to look seedy, unkempt, to appear ill-dressed or classed as a has-been. It's only human nature after all.

Advertisements are the barometers of style. The advertisements of collars and clothes have served as the models after which the modern well-groomed young man patterns his personal appearance—even to the dressing of his hair.

The advertisements of fashionable gowns from Paris, the exquisitely dressed women pictured in the advertising of silks and other dress materials, are the criterions by which the twentieth century woman judges whether she is costumed to the minute or not.

You cannot ignore advertising and be up to date in matters of dress. No more can you pass over advertisements that tell you of the latest necessities and luxuries that make for better and happier living. In fact, advertising keeps us modern in every sense if its reading is made a daily habit.

Read advertisements regularly and you will soon surprise yourself with you keen knowledge of values—to say nothing of your increased knowledge of every-day affairs.

The regular and systematic study of the advertisements in this newspaper is a liberal education in economics.

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

Grace J. Austin.

There curled up in front of Dame Fashion sat a little Brownie. Palmer Cox drew so many pictures of those funny little folk, a half generation ago, that everybody knows what a Brownie looks like. He piped up in quite a loud tone:

"I just guess I'm the ruler this season. You take a walk around the shops, and if you don't see more brown, right from my domain, and by my orders, than any other color, I'll give in that I was mistaken.

"Now fur is going to be one of the leading objects on the horizon in the coming months, and good old Mother Nature made almost every bit of fur in the universe in some shade of brown—unless it is black or white! Queer, too, about that, because the fur was made brown so it wouldn't be conspicuous to enemies of the furry folk. And black for a match to tree trunks and deep black caves—with the white fur on snow beasts. Well, maybe people put on fur so to be inconspicuous, but I have my doubts."

"That's rather unpleasant of you, Brownie—folks put on fur because it is warm and comfortable, and not just because it looks interesting."

"Caught you!" Brownie shouted. "Didn't you admit you were willing to take off your fox scarf last fall if the temperature rose to 110?" "Go back to brown-talk," commanded Dame Fashion sternly.

"Well, take this matter of pumps; can you find any that are prettier than these soft brown suede ones? If you were a man, you might call them 'tobacco brown,' but being a lady, you can say 'chocolate' if you wish. And some of the handsomest silk hose on the market are of this same rich brown."

"But Brownie, that's such a dark shade! Can't we have our nice light beige hose all winter?" Brownie shook his head violently.

"You can't help yourself. It would be common sense you would be fighting against. With chill in the air, fashionable folk choose darker shades for street wear. But think a little of the many wonderful brown velvet and calico-print brown velvet dresses that will be worn this winter. It suits me especially when ecru lace is combined with the velvet, and rippling lace jabots, scarfs or yokes are worn.

"And about these brown hats," meditated Brownie. "I hope you have a nice shape to the back of your head, because that will be much in evidence this winter. Those who can stand it will push the hat back from the forehead, and what a nice intellectual look that will give!

"Once upon a time there was a man—oh, a very wise man, and his name was Ralph Waldo Emerson. And one of the wisest things he said was 'Hitch your wagon to a star.' He didn't suppose he was giving a fashion note, but it seems to me he was, at least for this year. Your gown is your wagon, to take you where you wish to go—and if it is an astonishingly beautiful one, it may give you a great set-forward on your life journey. But be sure to 'hitch it to a star'—some gleaming buckle, some crystal Chanel 'frock pin' or some memorable bit of costume adornment in the way of semi-precious stone."

And with that, the Brownie concluded his little discourse.

Helmets, Cloches Lead in Headgear

Black, Black and Beige, Wood Browns, Red, Green, Blue, Favored Colors.

Contrast is the password in millinery either in color, fabric or both, says the Woman's Home Companion. The use of longer haired, smoothly brushed hatter's plush as trimming is one of the new developments. It is used as a facing, for bands, incrustations and bands. Two-color and two-tone velours hats are smart as well as those that have all-over patterns stamped in, pasted on or printed. Set-in geometric designs in two colors trim sports felt hat crowns while more formal hats have more appropriate trimmings such as matching or contrasting applied feathers.

Predominating shapes are the helmet, poke and cloche. The latter is about one-quarter inch lower in the crown and just a trifle broader, giving it a slightly different and newer appearance. Poke bonnets of course are much modified although one French milliner has made some that tie under the chin. Helmets are still much in evidence, but they are a trifle less severe. Turbans, berets and hats with beret crowns are also smart, the latter two being the only chic exceptions to snugly fitting crowns. All hats continue to hug the nape of the neck.

Variations of Cloche and Helmet Prominent in Millinery.

Fall millinery fabrics are supple and well adapted to the more complicated manipulation of the new mode. Velvet, quantities of both plain and novelty felts, hatter's plush and soft velours tell the fabric story. Black, black and beige, warm wood browns, red, deep green and bright deep blue are color leaders.

Pronounced Femininity in Latest Accessories

New and individual accessories have a feeling for "femininity." This fact is especially evident in the more formal afternoon bags which are making an appearance.

A brown antelope pouch bag has a perpendicular band of silver and gold brocade, and it would be charming with an ensemble in tones of this smart shade.

Tiny gold beads that have the appearance of seed pearls are braided many times to form a necklace and matching bracelet of great distinction.

Wearing a jeweled fob on the shoulder of an evening frock is a smart conceit introduced by a Parisian. A combination of jade and crystal is most appealing and gains a world of chic on the right gown.

Silver leather is not a new medium for evening bags, but a flat envelope lined in pale green and fastened with a green enamel clasp is attractive.

A decorative, yet efficient pocket-comb is something to dream about. Just such an article is made of real shell, topped with solid gold, on which one's monogram could be placed. Another one that had its beauty to recommend it was trimmed with Chinese blue enamel.

A modernistic buckle of silver and wood gives added charm to a belt of dark brown wool braid.

Sports Wear Brings Out Youthfulness Desired

The influence of the sports type of dress is a youthful one. Age becomes less and less real in the minds of those who create fashions for women. The young girl is no longer a very young girl, and the old woman is not so very old either. They tend to move toward a common goal that lies between the extremes. Both of them are youthful, comfortable, active, and in tune with modern life in all its manifestations. This is essentially an active age and the woman whose clothes do not imply this seems to be out of date and behind the times. No note better suggests this vigorous, healthy state than the sports note. The whole idea is to make the best use of everything in the mode that is advantageous, and certainly youthfulness is at all times to be desired.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

The Ensemble Idea Becomes a Factor in Christmas Gifts.

New York.—Winter showings held in Paris the latter part of October indicate that the uneven hemline has had its night and perhaps its day, although it never has been as important at that time.

There is a persistent effort to keep dresses short for the greater part of the time, although at night, as long as they are picturesque the length seems relatively unimportant. That trains are being shown again is a staggering thought, but if they are not insisted upon and one may take a train or leave it there is little to grumble about. Their place is in the home or in the most formal of environments.

Long sleeves and fans naturally came in with the first train. They are a part of the dress parade in progress. Several of the great French houses still support skirt fullness massed at the back in the bustle manner. The formalized silhouette remains the dominant note with ensembles firmly entrenched, although differently represented. The unexpectedness of some of the color schemes, and the linking up of fabrics which are identical in pattern and color but variant in texture seems more than a passing phase.

During the helter skelter days ahead, one's style sense becomes quiescent as one's mad quest for gifts speeds up with the approaching holidays. The intimate gift of something to wear has a strong appeal. Almost every shop caters to the vanity of man, woman or child at this season. From the stockings "hung by the chimney with care" to the gifts slipped into them style is a factor.

The ensemble gift is an idea. A pair of gloves matched to a pair of stockings or to a handbag, for instance. Handkerchiefs matched with a scarf, earrings matched with a ring, not necessarily a priceless one. A muff matched with a cravat a ginger ale jacket—if the name cocktail jacket seems inappropriate, matched to a metal mesh evening hat or baudeau and so on without end including lighters and cigarette cases and holders matched to the costume or the vanity.

Neckwear counters again become busy centers all manner of lace collar and cuff sets, lace and otherwise, being displayed, these carefully avoiding white. Man sized handkerchiefs wisps for all their size, of gay chiffons, heavily monogrammed at one corner or finished at one or four corners with lace present interesting gift possibilities which imply a knowledge of the mode.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A New Smock

6282. Seams and flares have now overtaken the smock a useful, comfortable work-a-day garment, that has proven of service and convenience for several seasons. As here portrayed printed silk in white and black was used with pipings of white. One could use percale in a natural shade or in pastel colors. Sateen and gingham are also attractive and serviceable. Orange or green cotton broadcloth would also be pleasing.

The pattern for this design is cut in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. To make the smock in a 38-inch size will require 2⅞ yards of 36-inch material together with ⅝ yard of contrasting material for facing on fronts, collar, cuffs and for pockets. To finish with bias piping or binding as illustrated will require 5¾ yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Fall and Winter 1928 Book of Fashions showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

WOMAN'S CANDIDACIES FOR PRESIDENCY RETOLD.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—A quarter-century ago Victoria Woodhull, three time aspirant to the presidency of the United States, predicted that "before many years there will be a woman president". But Americans are still sending men to the White House.

The first time Mrs. Woodhull was a candidate for the presidency was in 1870 when she and her sister, Tennessee Claflin, later Lady Cook, were known as the first "lady brokers" in Wall street, and were conducting Woodhull and Claflin's Weekly.

Two years later she was nominated by the People's Party at a meeting in Apollo Hall, New York, when, as Emanie Sachs tells in her biography of Victoria, called "The Terrible Siren", the audience sprang to its feet and cheered. Frederick Douglas, negro reformer, was on the ticket for the vice presidency.

Her third candidacy was in 1892. Then the wife of John Bidduiph Martin of England, on a visit to America, she announced her third campaign as one of "merely education". She did not receive the support of the suffrage organizations, but ran on a "humanitarian platform".

"Not a single vote was reported for Victoria Woodhull Martin, though a brother-in-law had voted for her," Mrs. Sachs writes. "He discovered afterwards that his ballot had been thrown out because he had made no provision for presidential electors."

Although she was depressed by the election returns after her first candidacy, Mrs. Woodhull announced that she hardly expected to be elected. "The truth is, I am too many years ahead of this age," she declared, "and the exalted views and objects of humanitarianism can scarcely be grasped yet by the unenlightened mind of the average man."

Trustee is Blind.

Nashville, Tenn. (AP).—Because Overton county, Tennessee, elected a blind trustee, its tax book is being transcribed by the Braille system so that the official may read the records with his finger tips.

TURKEY MAKES TAXIS SAFE FOR COQUETRY

Constantinople, (AP).—Taxi petting-parties, one of the phenomena of the recent emancipation of Turkish women, have been given a boost by the chief of police of Constantinople.

He has ordered taxi-drivers to remove the mirrors which they have the habit of fastening on the inside of their windshields and by means of which they could watch their passengers in the back seat. Stamboul chauffeurs become so absorbed in watching the new game of flirtation in which back-seat occupants indulge that the number of traffic accidents has increased by leaps and bounds since the inauguration of these mirrors.

The chauffeurs plead that the mirrors are an essential precaution by which they can check on passengers who have a habit of jumping out and running away without paying their fares and also as a safeguard against bandit clients who more than once recently have hailed a taxi, driven to the hills beyond Stamboul and there wounded or murdered the chauffeur and made away with his car.

The inexorable chief of police, however, insists that the mirrors must come down, and Turkish flappers rejoice.

EGGS ARE WORTH MORE TO RUSSIA THAN GOLD

Moscow, (AP).—Soviet economists have figured out that eggs bring almost three times as much profit to the government as the total gold output of the country. The production of gold amounts to approximately $125,000 annually.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Ganna Walska is to sing over a radio hookup Thanksgiving afternoon.

Pittsburgh—Ruby Keeler, Al Jolson's dancing bride, has run out on Ziegfeld's "Whoopee." She wired the producer she hoped he was not angry, but she had to join Al on the coast. Ruby did a number with Eddie Cantor in "Whoopee" in which Cantor impersonated Jolson.

New York—Having found that the trouble with modern marriage is idleness, Ann Orr, former star of musical comedy, is returning to the footlights. She retired in 1919 when she married Archibald McNeil, Jr. It is her opinion that both husband and wife should be occupied.

Manlamo, B. C.—Two eagles fought a duel to the death here. Locked in combat, they fell into Comax Road Park and continued to battle until a truck driver ended the fight with a club.

Gettysburg, Pa.—A devoted collie's incessant barking so annoyed the neighbors that they came to see if Miss Flora Hartzell, 82, its owner, couldn't stop it. They found her unconscious in the garden after a paralytic attack.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y.—Roger Q. Williams, from his plane over a busy boulevard, saw an automobile plunge into a ditch. He nose-dived, landed, and telephoned for an ambulance, which rescued five injured motorists.

Racine, Wis.—Edward Hedeen, airplane pilot, who has made 283 continuous turns in a horizontal spin, believes he has beaten the record by 80 turns.

Managua—Conservatives and Liberals have united to raise funds for a monument as Nicaragua's tribute to Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, of the U. S. army, who supervised the recent presidential election. "Plaza McCoy" would be established as the site of the monument.

Meriden, Conn.—For men only! A barber here announces his shop will be "stag," with no service available for women.

Milford, Pa.—Gifford Pinchot's plans for realization of the dream of a lifetime are subject to delay by Congress. He has bought a schooner for a cruise in the south seas, but if there is a special session he will postpone his start in order to press his views on waterpower conservation.

New York—The Great White Way now has 20,880 electric signs from the Battery to 135th street, burning 1,309,918 lamps. The latest and largest is half a city block long, and five stories high, flashing its message through 8,115 lamps fed by about 20 miles of wire.

Scarsdale, N. Y.—Mr. Castas Nitaikades is going to Europe in an effort to repay the U. S. A. for the advantages it has given him since his arrival from Greece in 1914. Castas, better known as "Hot Dog Joe," has made money, but he is convinced that a crying need is a better covering for a dog than a roll. He has been unable to make waffles and various other things fit, so he is to explore the kitchens of five countries.

A POOL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE heart must be
A crystal pool,
Through all life's turmoil
Calm and cool,
The things around
To know, to love,
And still reflect
The things above.

No argosies
Will plough its deep,
No pensions o'er
Its waters sweep,
No gilded ships
Their pennons show,
But, oh, the peace
The heart will know!

For I care more
For peace than power,
And know no beauty
Like a flower.
I thank the God
Who made of me
Only a pool
And not the sea.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

NOISY COURAGE

ONE of the interesting fictions which bad literature nourishes and supports is that a noisy, boisterous man is necessarily a coward.

The blustering bad man and the quiet, modest hero are two of the favorite characters of authors and readers of popular adventure stories. In the inevitable clash between these two characters the poor bad man never has a Chinaman's chance.

He is always proved an arrant coward. The quiet one, usually flicking a speck of dust from his coat, invariably emerges victorious from every encounter with his rival.

Everybody likes to think of an insolent, domineering bully getting his just deserts. If he gets them through an apparently weak, quiet little fellow, the picture is just that much more enjoyable.

Unfortunately, we cannot make a thing so merely by thinking of it. The things we imagine do not always exist in real life.

It is not always wise to assume that a loud-talking, boastful ruffian is a poltroon, pleasing as the thought may be. Any such assumption is quite likely to lead one into a very embarrassing situation.

* * * * * * * *

O. Henry once said that when it came to a choice between tackling a swaggering bully and a quiet stranger he would pick on the latter every time.

Nobody ever proved that John L. Sullivan was a coward. Yet it was Sullivan's habit to bring his fist down on the table and emphatically declare that he could lick every so and so in the world.

It was felt at the time that he did not exaggerate very much. At least, few quiet strangers stepped noiselessly out of their obscure corners to prove that he was a liar.

It is, of course, a fact that fighting words do not make a fighting man.

* * * * * * * *

Noise itself means little. The noisiest person may have far less ability than the person who does not broadcast his merits and abilities.

But neither does noise prove that a man lacks courage or ability.

In fact, some of our most successful citizens are those who have shouted their own praises the loudest.

I do not say that this is meritorious. It would probably become them better to be more modest when referring to themselves.

But modesty pays few dividends. The world usually takes a man at his own valuation—at least until it finds him out.

Insolence is often a mask for cowardice and boastfulness is often a mask for incompetence. But not always.

The domineering bully may be an obnoxious nuisance. But that does not make him a coward by several jumps.

So if you decide to mix it with him, be prepared for a real scrap. For it is about an even chance that you will find yourself engaged in one.

HOOVER'S "BEST STORIES" REVEAL LOVE OF PRESIDENT-ELECT FOR A GOOD YARN

Herbert Hoover's favorite stories—the anecdotes and situations that coax the cheeriest chuckles from the normally serious-minded president-elect—are related for the first time in the Cosmopolitan by Bruce Barton, personal friend of the future occupant of the White House.

These stories reveal a side of the next president not yet known to the American people. They disclose a Hoover not quite jovial, perhaps, and certainly not a Hoover of boisterous gaiety, even in moments of relaxation. But they do show a human and fun-loving disposition, beneath the Quaker quirk of his character, that would seem to insure, despite his efficiency, a somewhat less solemn atmosphere around the executive mansion than has existed under the administration of President Coolidge.

Because of his diverse activities in all parts of the world it is natural that Hoover's "best stories" should have an international flavor. There is, for instance, the one about the surrender of the Montenegrin armies to the United States Food Administration. No novelist ever imagined a more romantic and dramatic yarn than that of the capitulation of these warring forces to a young lieutenant in Hoover's organization.

Then there is the story of how Archduke Ferdinand of Hungary, seeking to set himself up as Emperor, suddenly found himself "on the skids" through the action of an American to whom archdukes meant less than nothing.

Bruce Barton

Hoover cherishes the laconic reply he received from his aide, who delivered the food administrator's ultimatum that food supplies would be cut off unless the archduke left Budapest at once. The use of code was not permitted, but Hoover's aide knew that his chief's sagacity and sense of humor would get the meaning of the following telegraphic report:

"Archie on the carpet at three five; through the hoop at three ten."

"GOLD ON TREES" SLOGAN OF PECAN GROWING AREA

Ardmore, Okla., (AP).—Pecan trees are rising skyward in southern Oklahoma and northern Texas, reaching for the glories of the oil derricks.

Growing of the yellow nuts is urged by bankers, farm agents and others interested in diversified agriculture.

"Gold on trees" is the slogan of the pecan enthusiasts.

With nuts bringing 30 cents a pound, there is a golden harvest in many communities. Annual shipments from Ardmore alone total almost 100 carloads.

Pecans grew wild in the territorial days of Oklahoma, but many of the native trees have been chopped down. The stumps, however, have been used for the grafting of cultured varieties, and some native groves have been thinned out and developed into profitable production. A 60-acre tract has produced $3,500 worth of native nuts in one season.

Oklahoma pecan growers have banded together in a state association, which strives to improve pecan culture and to encourage consumption of the nuts.

This Changing Age
By W. A. Van Valkenburgh

(An old print from The Scientific American).

An accompanying article advises:

The simplest, however, of all conceivable flying machines would be a cylinder blowing out gas in the rear, and driving itself along on the principle of the rocket. Carbonic acid may be liquefied and at a temperature of 150°, it exerts a pressure of 1,496 lbs. to the square inch

In this age of practical inventions methods of fireproofing have reduced the risk, but only certain protection against fire loss is fire insurance. Whether you have a home on West Chestnut street or a store on Broadway we can solve your insurance problem.

Now is the time to install a new range—to take care of your holiday cooking and to provide you with leisure hours for the big games and other fall activities. You can go—and return after a day in the outdoors to a delicious, piping hot meal. With the modern gas range, equipped with an oven heat regulator, you place your meal in the oven and forget it in the pleasure of a trip. When you return, after four or five hours, you can bring guests home to a savory home made dinner. The oven heat regulator is set so that a constant temperature is maintained and your meat and vegetables are done to a turn, with no watching. We have many models on display.

MECHANICAL MIRACLES

AT A recent meeting of the National Industrial conference it was announced that 67 men, working on a shorter number of hours, can now do what 100 men did in 1899. Commenting on this condition, Secretary Davis remarked: "Every day sees the perfection of some new mechanical miracle that enables one man to do better and more quickly what many used to do. With the invention of every labor-saving machine should come invention of ways of using the men whose labor is saved." The implication is that unless this is accomplished new machinery does not in the long run save labor but really wastes it.

Many suggestions have been offered to remedy this condition, which in some respects has become very acute. The problem has been partially solved by the opening up of new lines of employment — automobile manufactories, the electrical industry, the film industry, building of new roads, etc. But there have taken care of only a small per cent of those whose labor has been dispensed with because of mechanical devices.

The mechanical miracle, which has created the displacement of man labor, calls for a more drastic and definite solution than permitting the natural course of events to take care of the problem.

What is the solution? Does progress demand that the mechanical miracle be set aside? Is the solution to be found in going back to the old order of things, when it took 100 men to do what can now be accomplished by 67 men? The answer is emphatically no. The world will undoubtedly be made better by the invention of modern machinery. Perhaps no better solution can be brought forward than that suggested by Secretary Davis, who insists "that machinery strengthens the lives of men, that men will be working at seventy years of age with the aid of machinery who otherwise would be set aside at forty-five or fifty, and that with every labor-saving machine should come some invention of ways of using the man whose labor is saved."

OVER 400 RELISHED GAME AT ROD AND GUN CLUB DINNER.

The Rondout Valley Rod and Gun Club held a most successful game dinner in the Accord M. E. Church Hall on Thursday evening last. Over four hundred persons were served with game, which was provided in abundance by a committee of the club's best marksmen. After dinner a dance was held at Odd Fellows' Hall, where both round and square dances were enjoyed until a late hour. Excellent music was furnished for dancing by a four-piece orchestra from Grahamsville.

This club was organized in 1927 and has a membership of over 300. The present officers are: President, Percy Booth; vice president, Theron Deyo; secretary, A. H. Decker.

Committee in charge of the game dinner were Ed Terwilliger, Theron Deyo, Aaron Bell, Edward G. Barley, Henry Decker and Harry Miller.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Reception was fair on Sunday but not as good as Saturday evening, when many DX stations were received, including KMOX, WGHP, WMS and all Chicago stations worth while. The new increase in power has added WABC to the fairly good daylight stations and WBZ seemed better Sunday than usual. The Werrenrath recital was good excepting less than five minutes of fading. The American Legion and Atwater Kent programs were good except for brief periods of fading during General Pershing's speech.

The new shakeup in wave-lengths seemed without effect other than to confuse listeners. Nothing was better and nothing seemed worse. Much of the changing seems to have been done "just for instance", as the assigning of WEAF to the position formerly occupied by WJZ and of WJZ to the former position of WHN.

Yellow Jackets And Cardinals Play Tie Game

Local Gridders and Albany Eleven Each Score Touchdown in Brilliant Game—Scheffel Scores for Kingston, Thomas for Albany.

The best the much heralded Albany Cardinals could do against the Yellow Jackets Sunday at the Kingston Fair Grounds was to break even, 6-6. As the score indicates the tilt was a thriller and stirred the many fans who turned out for the game, played on an ideal football day.

Harry Scheffel, Yellow Jacket left end, scored a touchdown in the first quarter for the Kingston team, which made the Cardinals fight an uphill battle throughout the first half. The trick stimulated the Albanians, however, and the upstaters furnished plenty of trouble for the Yellow Jackets after the locals scored. The touchdown was made by Scheffel, who recovered the ball on a fumble made by the Cardinal backfield, which was their second costly one up until that period. The Kingston scorer was about 10 years from the goal when the fumble occurred as the Yellow Jackets had worked the ball down the field but lost it on downs at the five yard line.

Cardinals Score.

The biggest thrill came in the third quarter when Thomas, a newcomer to the Cardinals, nabbed a forward pass thrown by Beany of the Yellow Jackets and meant for Joie Hoffman, and galloped 45 yards for a touchdown. Albany fans wildly cheered as the fleet boy, formerly a St. Lawrence University backfielder, crossed the line. Kingston fans were then on edge as the after touchdown point was in question. The local rooters were relieved when the Cardinals failed on a line plunge for the extra point.

The Yellow Jackets chose to kick off to the Cardinals, who appeared to be somewhat lighter than the local gridders. The toe of Shults sent the ball down to the Albanians' 20 yard line. The receiver fumbled and the Yellow Jackets got possession of the pigskin. After two attempts to advance the oval a punt was called for and Shults booted the pigskin to the 15 yard line. Winters got the leather and ran about eight yards. The following play was a forward pass from Winters to Scheffel, which brought the ball down to the five yard line. Here the Cardinal line became a tower of strength and held the Yellow Jackets for four downs. The upstaters were given the ball, but fumbled on the first play. Harry Scheffel picked up the pigskin and trotted 10 yards for the Yellow Jackets six markers. Kingston failed to make the extra point.

During the second quarter, the Cardinals showed more fight than in the first period. They made three first downs to two for Kingston, but were unable to score.

Soldiers In Game.

The spurt shown by the Cardinals in the second quarter tired several of the Yellow Jacket men, especially the backfielders, who put extra steam in their line plunges. Beany, Burton and Hoff, three artillerymen from West Point, who had eagerly watched the first half from the bench, went into the fray. The Cards kicked off and after three attempts to advance the ball, Beany punted on his own 45 yard line. The leather dropped several feet from the Albany goal. It was worked down to the 25 yard line when the Cardinals lost it to the Yellow Jackets on downs. The locals had possession of it for a short period when they fumbled and Albany took the oval. It was punted to Kingston's 40 yard line. Here Beany threw a forward directed at Joie Hoffman, who missed the leather. Thomas of the Cardinals snapped up the ball and ran 45 yards for a touchdown and tied the score. The Albanians missed topping the Yellow Jackets by one point when they failed on a line plunge to get the after touchdown point.

There was no more scoring for this nor the following quarter. It looked as though Kingston would score before the third period ended however when Joie Hoffman intercepted a forward and gained about 30 yards. He was taken down on Albany's 45 yard line and the Yellow Jackets were forced to punt. This gave the Cards the oval and before another play could be completed the quarter ended.

The ball was in Albany's territory for most of the closing quarter. Neither team could score during the session although there was action galore made by threatening spurts.

West Point Service Next.

Sunday, November 18, will bring together the Yellow Jackets and the West Point Service Club at the Kingston Fair Grounds. This aggregation of soldiers always furnishes good opposition. It is expected that the tilt will be witnessed by a goodly gathering of fans.

Kingston High Blanks Peekskill, McDonald Hurt

Locals Score Two Touchdowns and Hold Peekskill Scoreless—Jones and Scully Cross Goal Lines—Phil McDonald in Benedictine.

The Kingston High School's margin of victory over Peekskill at the Kingston Fair Grounds Saturday was not only on the offense but in the surprising defense which the Maroon and White line displayed against the down state forwards. Kingston scored in the early part of the first quarter when Jones took the ball on a twenty-five yard end run and Scully carried the pigskin over the final white line in the last period which netted 12 points while they held their opponents scoreless.

In the last quarter Kingston lost one of its best men on the left side of the line "Phil" McDonald, who has the reputation of being the best tackle in the Hudson valley for the past two years. "Phil" was stopping all the men that tried to carry the ball through his side of the line, but McDonald paid for his last beautiful tackle. He hit his opponent hard and low, but when the man "Phil" tackled got up McDonald failed to move. He was carried off the field and was taken to the Benedictine Hospital where an X-ray was taken which showed he had a fractured shoulder and other injuries.

Kingston got the jump on their opponents in the early part of the game when through successive end runs they carried the ball from their own forty yard line for a touchdown. Kingston made six first downs to their opponents four.

Jones Scores First Touchdown

Clarke kicked off to Peekskill's twenty yard line where the ball was gathered in by Stotler, who carried the pigskin for twenty yards before he was downed by Merrill and Fisher. In the following plays Peekskill tore off big gains through Kingston's line but this didn't last long for Kingston's line soon became like a stone wall and the down state eleven resorted to end runs.

Peekskill was held for three downs and on the fourth down they were forced to punt, having the ball on their own forty yard line. DeGraff dropped back to kick and he booted the ball to Kingston's 30 yard line where it was caught by Meagher, who carried the ball back about fifteen yards. On the next play, Watts took the ball through the center of the line for five yards. The pigskin was now on the mid field strip.

Meagher called for an end run and gave Merrill the ball. Merrill carried it to his opponent's 35 yard line. Kingston now tried line plunges which netted another first down. Meagher followed this by calling a number of forward passes but they were all incompleted. The ball was on Peekskill's 25 yard line when Jones carried the leather around the right end of Kingston's line for a touchdown. Clarke tried to boot the extra point but failed.

Kingston's interference on end runs was the best this season and it continued throughout the game for whenever the locals wanted a first down they took the ball around end and most of the time accomplished the purpose.

Peekskill Blocks Kick.

In the beginning of the second quarter Kingston had the ball in their possession on their own 25 yard line when they punted. Watts made a beautiful kick to Peekskill's 40 yard line where it was caught by DeGraff who ran it down to Kingston's 35 yard line. They then made a gain around left end for about fifteen yards but all their work went to naught for on the next play Merrill intercepted a pass on his own five yard line and was tossed before he could advance the ball.

Meagher immediately called for a punt. Watts dropped back to boot the pigskin but before he could get the ball off his toe the Peekskill men blocked it. Luckily the ball rolled out of the end zone or it would have been a safety for the down state team. "Pop Hinds the referee ruled it as a touchback and the ball was taken out to the twenty yard line. Shortly after this the whistle blew for the half.

Kingston Again Scores.

The third quarter went through without either team threatening to score.

In the fourth period Peekskill carried the ball to Kingston's 20 yard line where McDonald was injured in an attempt by Peekskill to gain through the line. McDonald was carried off the field and Tinney a second string man took his place who played his position well. Peekskill was held and Kingston recovered the ball on downs on their own twenty yard line.

Watts booted the ball out of dangerous territory and DeGraff, who caught the punt, was downed in his tracks by Jones and Shields on Peekskill's 20 yard line.

DeGraff then punted to the Maroon and White's 40 yard strip where he caught the pigskin but was unable to advance the ball any. On the next play Meagher caught a pass tossed by Scully and the ball was carried to midfield. Again Meagher called for a pass and Scully threw the ball for thirty yards into the waiting arms of Shields, who was downed right after he caught the ball. It was this gain that paved the way for Kingston's second touchdown. Meagher tossed the ball to Scully on the following play and the fleet halfback took the ball around the right side of the line for the second and last touchdown of the game. Thompson tried to kick the extra point but failed.

Kingston, 12. Peekskill, 0.

MUCH EXPECTED OF AL SHARPE

Look to Coach to Place His Team Among Leaders.

Dr. Al Sharpe, famous Eastern athletic authority who is now in his first year as head football coach at Washington university, is expected by alumni and fans of the Mrytle to gradually place the school among the athletics leaders of the Mid-West.

Sharpe has signed a five-year contract as director of athletics and is not required to coach football. A great love for the game, however, prompted the veteran mentor to resume actual coaching this season although his last actual field work was in 1919—his last as head football coach at Yale.

Sharpe was a great athlete at Yale. Although he was a star of the first magnitude in football he also made letters in basket ball, track, baseball and gymnastics. After graduation in 1920 he immediately went to William Penn Charter academy—his prep school alma mater—where he coached until 1912. That year found him transfering to Cornell where he established a record as one of the outstanding grid coaches in the game. His 1915 team at Cornell was unbeaten and such elevens as Pennsylvania and Harvard were defeated.

In 1919 he became head coach at Yale but surrendered the football work after one year and devoted himself to athletic direction work until 1921. Since then he has been head of the Ithaca School of Physical Education at Ithaca, N. Y. In recent years he has officiated in leading Eastern college games.

Under Sharpe a new spirit has arisen at Washington and although material is none too plentiful this year a good team is gradually being molded.

TRIS SPEAKER TO MANAGE NEWARK

Newark, N. J., Nov. 12 (AP).—Walter Johnson's post as manager of the Newark Internationals is to be filled by another famous American Leaguer—Tris Speaker.

The "Gray Eagle" who has made outfielding history in the American League for 22 years, has signed a two-year contract to be player manager of the Newark club. The terms were not announced but it was understood Speaker was to receive one of the highest salaries ever paid a minor league manager.

Speaker hopes to begin reorganization of the Newark club at the minor league convention in Toronto next month.

Chandlers Beat The Hupmobiles; Y's Men Win

At the Y. M. C. A. court Saturday night the Chandlers won their second game of the season, by defeating the Hupmobiles, 36-15. In the preliminary game the Y's Men began their 1928 campaign by taking over the Comforters 41 to 28. This was the first game of the season for both the Y's Men and their opponents.

The Hupmobile's team work was not what it was cracked up to be. Their coach "Bob" Corregan will have to drill his men a little harder in order to make them able to give "Pop" Hinds' team a better game.

Merritt began the scoring for the Chandlers by dropping a field goal and Stumpf followed with one for the Hups. It looked for a while as though it was going to be a well fought battle, but Merritt again put the leather through the hoop for two more points. Niles and the rest of his team mates continued to score and at the end of the quarter the score stood in the Chandlers' favor 9-2.

Fox was sent in for Niles in the second quarter and he scored the first two points for the Chandlers. As yet the Hups didn't find the hoop for a score since the one Stumpf made in the early part of the game but Aduchefsky came through with one foul out of two tries and in close succession Stumpf dropped one in from the side of the court for two more points to his team's score and Shultz sunk a pretty one from the middle of the floor which summed up the points for that half.

While the Hups were making their five hard fought for points, the Chandlers were working the ball down in under their basket and their pass work was yielding fruit nine times out of ten for when the half ended the Chandlers were eleven points in the lead, 18-7.

The first quarter of the second half was all in favor of the Chandlers for their forwards and center dropped the leather through the hoop continuously and piled up such a lead that the Hups were now beginning to realize that it couldn't be overcome. Shultz's foul and Aduchefsky's field goal were the only points the Hups gathered in the third quarter for the score was 28 to 10 with the Chandlers on top.

In the last quarter the Hups didn't gain much as the score indicates, but the Chandlers made their usual number of points. The game ended with the Y representatives having 36 points to their opponents 15.

Y's Men Win.

In the preliminary game the Y's Men swamped the Comforters 41 to 28. The Comforters put up a good game for a while but the Y's Men were too much for them and they soon piled up a big lead on their opponents. "Pop" Hinds was leading scorer for the Y's Men having 18 points to his credit while Van Bramer led the list of scorers for the Comforters with seven marks by his name.

RONDOUTS TO PLAY HUPMOBILES TUESDAY.

The Rondout A. C. Basketball team will open their season Tuesday against Bob Corregan's strong Hupmobile quintet. J. Molyneaux, Stumph, Aduckescky, Wonderly, Andy Gilday, Schultz and Smith will form the lineup for the Hupmobiles while Manager Dick Warrington, of the Rondouts, will use Eddy Gilday, Tony Arena, Neil Bruck, Nick Bruck, John Graney, Joe Disch, Art Gulnek, Hank Fisher and Tommy Davitt.

The Rondout are in excellent condition and expect to give the Hups a fast battle.

The game will be called at 9 o'clock and will be played on the Salvation Army Court.

A challenge is issued to all teams around this section by the Rondouts.

Port Jervis Gets Pennant.

Port Jervis copped the DUSO League football pennant by trouncing Newburgh 7-0 at the Hilly City Saturday afternoon. The tilt was the hardest of the season for the Port Club.

Mary Dugan was brought to trial. Her lawyer did his best—but it looked like a clear case against her. And then something happened to turn a sensational murder trial into the most baffling mystery of the century.

Bids Opened for Tongore Bridge

Bids for the construction of the Tongore bridge were opened Friday at the office of the board of supervisors. Three bids were received and opened at that time. The low bid was that of Irving V. A. Huie of Saugerties for $12,431.50. The Charles J. Michaud Company, Inc., was second with a bid for $15,200 and the S. B. Van Wagenen, Inc., was third with a bid for $15,995. Each bid was accompanied by a certified check for five per cent of the bid and in the case of the two higher bidders the check was returned while that of Huie was retained.

A report will be made to the board of supervisors Tuesday night and at that time action will be taken on the contract.

The bridge is located at Olive Bridge and was one of the larger bridges which was destroyed by the recent flood.

Fairy Story—"Once upon a time there was a man who managed to get his family history the same in two life insurance applications."

Things are becoming more mixed every: An article on talking pictures in a theatre of weekly says of a singer that his voice screens poorly.

Listed in the property inventory of an eastern zoo is 1,000 feet of one-inch hawser. Dental floss, the assumption is, for the elephant.

Another ever-interesting feature of the health hints is a recurrent list of green vegetables that cure scurvy, which Lovely has anymore, anyway.

It is quite surprising sometimes to turn to the last chapter of the modern realistic novel and find a number of the characters alive and out of jail.

A way to make lumber out of cornstalks has just been discovered. We should have said that a way to make lumber out of cantaloupes would have been easier.

Children: That gooey stuff, a wisp of which is found on the bush outside the French window, by the great detective in the case.

The camera would be more generous if it could limit itself to the display of muscular graces and omit the strained facial expression.

A Texas writer thinks that instead of worrying about cotton bugs, growers ought to diversify their produce. Weevil to him who weevil thinks.

It takes the average young bridegroom about a year from the time the presents arrive to break all the incense-burners rather accidentally.

"One reason why modern woman is advancing she no longer conceals her personality," cries a woman writer in a current magazine. Jess so; jess so!

A Paris note says skirts are four to eight inches below the knee, indicating that France has completely lost influence in dictating American fashions.

Do You Know Your Music?

THE overture as a musical form will be discussed by Walter Damrosch in his next symphony concert, which will be broadcast over the WJZ network of the NBC Friday morning during the RCA Educational Hour. The two compositions which Mr. Damrosch will conduct during this program are the overture to "Egmont," by Beethoven, and the overture to "Le Roi d'Ys," by Lalo. The stirring events in the life of the hero Egmont inspired Beethoven's overture; and the music of Lalo tells an ancient legend of the island of [illegible] Ys, off the coast of France.

Save this article and listen-in Friday at 11:30 A. M. (E. S. T.), 10:30 A. M. (C. S. T.), 9:30 A. M. (M. S. T.); then test your memory and knowledge of music by answering the following questions which Mr. Damrosch has prepared for older students in high schools and colleges. The answers will be printed here next week together with a new set of questions for the next concert.

1—Q. What is an overture?
2—Q. What is the object of an overture?
3—Q. How does the overture attain that object?
4—Q. Who was Egmont?
5—Q. What do the heavy chords of the opening to "Egmont" typify?
6—Q. What does the plaintive passage that follows represent?
7—Q. What is described in the Allegro of the "Egmont" Overture?
8—Q. What does the last part of the Overture symbolize?
9—What legendary story does the Overture to "Le Roi d'Ys" epitomize?
10—Q. What instruments figure prominently in solo passages in the overture?

Occasionally a mother is so anxious as to tell a child that the teacher will get even with him for all his sins. "You needn't think you can behave this way when you get to school," she says, "the teacher won't stand for it." She may even go further and describe the dire things the teacher will be apt to do. Such a mother is usually amazed if you point out to her that her child's unsuccessful start in school—his reluctance to go, and the difficulty he caused after he got there—was the direct outcome of her own way of presenting school to him. She probably did not expect to be taken seriously, but the child who is entering an unknown realm has no way of discounting what is told him about it.

It is just as possible to present school to a child as a place where learning will be a joy and life will be full of interest and enthusiasm, where the teacher will be a new and helpful adult friend, and the children delightful playmates. The child who enters school in this spirit has at least a fair show of finding what he is looking for. Indeed, unconsciously he helps to create the school atmosphere he has been led to expect.

North America, one must assume, has got its affairs into very good order when, as a matter of routine administration, the Canadian government imports reindeer to supply food for Eskimos in danger of starvation in the distant and desolate regions along the Mackenzie river. Not the slightest part of this vast territory lies outside the attention of authorities. Very little time has passed since Eskimos of the North or Indians of the great plains starved on occasion or died of disease without notice, but now even the nomads along the Arctic ocean are under observation.

If you think you can find nothing to do, take note that the bureau of the census lists 573 occupations in this country. Practically all of them are necessary and useful. The young man and young woman coming out of school ought not to be discouraged. Pick one of these 573 occupations and begin to produce. The world was never so busy, never so full of opportunities. A man said the other day that he wanted a manager for his business but "there wasn't any." Good jobs and nobody capable of filling them! Sounds astonishing but it's true.

The American farmer has, at least, succeeded in asserting himself as an economic force in defiance of the comic traditions to the effect that he wore his pants in his boots and devoted most of his time to sitting on a rail fence and chewing a straw. The successful farmer is a soil scientist and an industrial organizer.

Vogue for Wool Challis; Among Modish Fabrics

The vogue for lightweight woolens has brought back wool challis into the list of fashionable fabrics. The new challis prints are most intriguing and for the informal afternoon wear, there is nothing prettier. The challis frock in the picture adopts a very interesting color scheme in that it is patterned in red, white and blue.

Flowered Taffeta

Strongly reminiscent of the days of 1880 is a frock of black taffeta covered with a flowered design in rather subdued color. The waist is cut V-shaped both back and front and the skirt has a great deal of extra fullness, which is arranged in the back and hangs from heavy cording.

Water seeks its level but no more surely than whiskey levels its seeker.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Speculation in stocks continued at a terrific pace in today's market, but there was increased irregularity in price movement. Operators for the rise maintained their advantage of the last fortnight, lifting 30 issues to record high prices on gains ranging from [illegible] to 17½ points.

The violent advances in pool specialties and the delay of more than an hour in the ticker were used as a screen for heavy selling in some of the recent favorites.

FRANK WARD'S STOLEN CAR RECOVERED AT HIGHLAND

Early Sunday morning Frank Ward reported that his automobile, which was parked in front of The Chateau on the Saugerties road, had been stolen. Later in the day the stolen car was recovered at Highland and returned to Mr. Ward.

Ambulance Calls Here.

The city ambulance on Saturday removed George Heohl from Wrentham street to the Benedictine Hospital; Billy Jones from the courthouse to the Benedictine Hospital; Mrs. James Hicks from 10 Clinton avenue to the Benedictine Hospital, and William Keegan from Fischer's Hotel to the City of Kingston Hospital.

About the Folks

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Payne and family of Albany, Dr. John A. Decker and sister, Elmora Wood, of Herkimer county, spent Sunday with Mrs. J. C. F[illegible] of 16 [illegible] avenue.

The Misses Helen Van Wagenen and Alice McLaughlin were week-end guests [illegible] Hamilton, N. Y. [illegible] attended an event [illegible] Alpha Fraternity [illegible] University.

The many friends of Edward Smith will be interested to know he is now at his family residence, 116 Ten Broeck avenue, after five months at the Montrell[illegible] where he was a patient after suffering serious injuries and an operation. He is slowly regaining his health.

Robert Gray Van Deusen, young son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Van-Deusen, of 221 West Chestnut street, underwent an operation on Saturday for the removal of his tonsils and adenoids at the City of Kingston Hospital. The operation was performed by Dr. Frank A. Johnston assisted by Dr. C. B. Van Gaasbeek.

Rolling Homes

One of the most astonishing changes which has ever come over any people in the history of the world has crept over American life during the past ten years. "Today in America," declares Robert R. Updegraff, in the Magazine of Business, "we require food, clothing, shelter and mobility. The motor car has actually become part of our houses. The average American home of today consists of a certain number of stationary rooms and one or more mobile or rolling rooms. The family automobile has become to be as definitely a living room as any room in the house. We are going to have a tunnel and bridge our rivers and harbors and lakes to an extent that we as yet little dream; we are going to have to build more apartment houses for people who will be content to live in three or four rooms—provided one of them is on wheels. But in doing this, warns Mr. Updegraff, "we must keep one eye on the sky, for about the time we get everything set for a comfortable rolling life, we are going to fly!"

More pertinent than one would think is the news that white potatoes are cheaper this year than for some seasons past. The potato and its price concerns nearly everybody, except those abundant ladies who have cut it off their diet on suspicion of fat-producing qualities. Even they usually have families to provide for, and must see that the other plates on the table have potatoes, ev[en] if their own bears none. One can do so many different things with the tuber—in which respect it differs from lima beans, peas, spinach, and all the salubrious list of green things. Every process of boiling, baking, roasting and frying may be applied to potatoes, with gratifyingly different results. One can even make them look different, and that is half the battle in feeding a family. Cheap potatoes, meaning plentiful potatoes, are good news in 57 different ways.

Red Cross Membership Is Sound Investment, Business Leader Says

"We believe that individual membership in the American Red Cross is a sound investment, yielding the investor tremendous returns in personal satisfaction," is the statemen[t] of William Butterworth, president of the Chamber of Commerce of th[e] United States, in endorsing the twelfth annual roll call of the American Red Cross, Nov. 11-29. Mr. Butterworth's statement follows:

"The men engaged in carrying forward the business an[d] industry of this nation are quick to respond, and respond generously, when human suffering calls for their assistance. They welcome the existence of an organization authorized by international treaty and congressional charter to act as their agency, and the agency of all the people, in providing relief in disaster and promoting their beneficial services to humanity. The nation's business men take particular pleasure in supporting The American National Red Cross because it has applied sound and efficient business technique and administrative methods without sacrifice of sympath[y] and understanding in the prevention and mitigation of human suffering.

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, as representative of the nation's business, has such confidence in the American Red Cross that it calls upon its member organizations to contribute to relief in disaster only upon Red Cross assurance that an appeal is necessary.

"We believe that individual membership in the American Red Cross is a sound investment, yielding the investor tremendous returns in personal satisfaction. The Red Cross is seeking to increase its membership to five million; the opportunity to join its ranks is presented by the Red Cross Chapters throughout the nation from November 11 to 29. It is good to be a link in this great chain of service reaching around the world."

(Signed)
WILLIAM BUTTERWORTH,
President
The Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Miss Burger's Correct Address.

Because of misinformation the address of Miss Nettie Burger of Newark, N. J., was given in The Freeman on Saturday as 14 Court street, instead of 102 Court street, that city. Miss Burger, formerly of Kingston, has been confined to her home for a long time because of her feet being in a crippled condition and will observe her birthday, as was announced, on November 14, and the correction in the address is made so that those who intend to remember her with some token will send it to 102 Court street.

Woodstock Man Aboard Ship

The steamer Voltaire, of the same line, also reported herself near and speeding to the spot.

At 11:20 the Vestris reported she was on her starboard beam and "has some boats out."

The Vestris radioed that she was not absolutely sure of the position she gave and appealed to all ships to come to her aid.

At 11 a. m. the steamer Santa Barbara said she was 110 miles from the Vestris.

At 11:19 a. m. the Vestris exchanged signals with the steamer San Juan, the latter stating she would arrive alongside at 4:20 p. m.

A man in China has been found who is reported to be be two hundred and fifty years old. He walks 30 miles a day, selling herb medicines and is a general favorite in a large area over which he has been traveling almost since the Manchu dynasty came into prominence. Li (for that is the ancient gentleman's name) is credited with 14 marriages and 11 generations of descendants. A new York Times correspondent says that Li's disciples are told by him to "keep a quiet heart, sit like a tortoise, walk sprightly like a pigeon, sleep like a dog."

Anchelos Kanellopoulous of Athens, Greece, must have had some good qualities. Because he was dying his wife took syrychnine and died; the shock of his condition caused his wife's mother, who was recovering from an operation, to die, and his son attempted suicide and his grandfather became insane. That is what might be called taking love seriously.

The body of a cat petrified in the 16 years that it has been sealed up in an airtight hole was found by a workman repairing a water main beneath a Philadelphia hotel. Even the whiskers are said to be petrified. Evidently when it comes to petrifying Philadelphia is not as slow as it's said to be.

The Detroit post office reports that 60 per cent of the applications for jobs as mail carriers come from college graduates. Our institutions of higher learning, we are glad to note, still turn out a goodly proportion of men of letters.

It has been said on highest authority that no man can show greater love than to give his own life for another —and we presume that applies to the soviet airman who crashed to death rather than effect a landing that would endanger the lives of others.

When Metal Gets Tired

A metal gets tired and needs a rest the same as does an animal, declares Prof. J. B. Kommers, expert on metal fatigue at the University of Wisconsin. When an axle breaks or an automobile wheel drops off without apparent cause, the reason usually is that the metal was fatigued and needed a rest and didn't get it. There is no way of preventing this fatigue, says Popular Science Monthly, except by resting the metal.

Record Crowd At Game Sunday

A record crowd attended the Yellow Jacket-Albany Cardinal football game at the Kingston Fair Grounds Sunday afternoon, according to the Managers Brooks and Craft, who said today that 700 admissions were collected.

This fact manifests that Kingston fans will patronize football games of the right calibre. The Albany Club surely was a strong eleven, they gave the Yellow Jackets plenty of trouble throughout the contest. Local fans admired their playing and undoubtedly would consider it a treat to see the Yellow Jackets mix it with the Albanians at a future date.

The fact that Beany, Burton and Hoff played with the Yellow Jackets is credited with drawing many fans to the Sunday game. These West Pointers, who always put plenty of action into the grid wars here, have a large number of admirers, that have joined the regular Yellow Jacket rooters and boistered the attendance.

Burton who was injured shortly after entering the game, was found to be suffering a slight fracture of the shoulder when a physician examined him Sunday evening. Jimmy Cassidy, Yellow Jacket center, had his knee injured in the game and had to receive treatment Sunday evening.

THIS WEEK'S ACTIVITIES AT. ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

St. John's Episcopal Church on Albany avenue will be open every day this week for special intercession for the success of the Home Visitation Campaign being carried on this week by twelve of the churches of this city, including St. John's Church.

On Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Woman's Auxiliary will meet at the home of Miss Kerr and Mrs. Warren on Albany avenue at which time the birthday bags will be brought in. At 4 o'clock there will be a special meeting at the same place of the Parish Aid Society.

All members of the Woman's Auxiliary who will be able to attend the Orange district meeting to be held at Walden on Friday, November 16, at St. Andrew's Church, are asked to at once communicate with Mrs. George DuBois, telephone 2913-J.

PARENT-TEACHER ASS'NS TO HOLD MEETINGS.

No. 8 School Parent-Teacher Association will meet Tuesday at 3:30 p. m. in the school. Principal Van Ingen, of Kingston High School, will be the speaker. Refreshments will be served after the meeting, which is expected to be largely attended.

No. 2 School P.-T. Association will meet Tuesday, November 13, at 3:20 p. m., in the school. A varied program will be given by the pupils.

The regular monthly meeting of the P.-T. A. of School No. 7 will be held at 3:30 on Tuesday afternoon. Refreshments will be served and new members are specially invited to attend.

Small Boy Trapped by Leading Question

Five pieces of candy remained on the plate. Billy, Harry and Robert had eaten as much as they were permitted to eat, and mother suggested that the five pieces be saved until a later time. Father agreed that mother's suggestion was made at the proper moment.

In the evening father noticed that only four pieces of candy remained on the plate, which had been placed on the buffet. He called the boys to inquire about the missing piece of candy, which he felt was to have been left untouched.

"Who has eaten a piece of candy since dinner?" he asked.

"All of us looked at it, but Billy ate it," said Robert, the oldest, to whom the question seemed to be addressed particularly.

"Did you eat the candy?" the father asked Billy, age three.

"No," replied Billy, who felt that he had made a most politic answer.

"Was it good, Billy?" asked the father.

"O yes," said the child, not aware of the contradiction in his reply.

Day of Sea Chanties Belongs to the Past

Music of the sea and true sea-music are not at all the same thing. Songs about the sea and the life of a sailor have been made in every language, but most of them have been written and sung by people who are safe and comfortable on dry land, and it seems natural enough that sailors, when they are aboard ship, should want to sing about almost anything but the sea. There are, as a matter of fact, no sea songs nowadays—none, that is, that are sung by sailors, since there are so few real sailors. Sea songs and chanties are remembered and published and sung by landsmen, but there can be no new songs of the kind till some one finds a way of singing to the work that has to be done on a steamship. Stoking would seem to be the most likely work for the purpose, but who could expect singing in a stokehold. And so the music on modern ships is mostly supplied by a band for the enjoyment, or not, of the passengers.

A Good Distinction

The hall was packed with people come to attend a political meeting, and the air was stifling. For some reason or other it seemed impossible to open the windows and one had to be broken.

It was feared that the noise would startle the audience, and the mayor stepped forward to explain what was proposed. The audience, however, had not assembled to listen to the mayor, and overwhelmed him with cries of "Jones! Jones!"

At last the misunderstood and infuriated official restored silence by shouting at the top of his lungs:

"I am not going to make a speech! I've got something to say!"—Kansas City Star.

Happiest Man Marries

When M. Grimault, known as the happiest man in Nanterre, a suburb of Paris, was married recently, friends gave the popular bridegroom a fitting celebration. Grimault and his bride were conveyed to the mairie in a wheelbarrow that had been decorated with leaves. Signs on it told of the approaching ceremony as friends pulled the vehicle through the streets. Grimault was compelled to wear a fantastic cap, huge goggles and scarf and to carry a copious basket filled with edibles and other gifts. Other wheelbarrows carried the guests.

A sign appeared in a Chicago store window, "Pineapples reduced to one-half regular price," and the storekeeper didn't see anything suggestive in that. A yellow pineapple on the brim a yellow pineapple was to him, and it was nothing more.

A single atom, properly harnessed, will do all the world's work sometime, a scientist tells us. If we were such a rip-tearing atom as that, we wouldn't work unless we wanted to.

It is useless to pine for the days when a candidate saddled his horse, went on a speaking tour relying on his eloquence and regarded a campaign fund of as much as $20,000 as a circumstance that would be dangerously suspicious.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Nov. 12.—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—Despite the fact that celery receipts were more liberal today, price changes were few and small under fairly good trading. Wholesale business on Western New York celery in the rough was consummated from $1.50-2.50, principally $2.25-2.50. Pacific Coast celery in large crates brought $4.25-6.50.

The onion situation was steady. Arrivals and the demand were moderate. Hundred pound sacks of fair quality, medium sized yellow onions from the western part of the state sold at $3.00-3.75. Offerings from the middle western states, superior in quality and of larger size, realized $3.85-4.40.

Receipts of apples from upstate were moderate. Trading was fair and the tone of the market steady. Basket U. S. Grade No. 1, 2½ inch Rhode Island Greenings jobbed out at $1.75-2.00 while barrels of the same grade and size commanded $6.00-6.50.

Little activity prevailed on the market for western and central New York concord grapes. Sales on 12-quart baskets were reported at mainly 45 cents, occasionally $.47½-.50.

The market on Western New York cabbage continued dull and entirely in the buyers' favor. Supplies were liberal but the outlet was poor. Jobbing sales on white Danish, packed in sacks of 85-90 pounds were consummated at $1.50-1.75, rarely higher. Pier business, however, was transacted at $1.30-1.35.

State lettuce values further strengthened, especially on fine quality stock. Crates of 24 heads of big Boston changed hands at $1.50-2.00. Western iceberg sold at $4.00-5.50 per crate of 42 to 60 heads.

Every one wants strength, but few are willing to pay the price.

The Tallest Building

Not to mention other interesting projects, the new Reynolds building facing the Commodore hotel, construction of which is promised within the year, will be the tallest in New York city, and, of course, in the world. Its extreme height will be 946 feet, 15 feet 11 inches more than the Woolworth. Thanks to a broader base, it will have in its sixty-seven stories about twice as much floor space as the present record holder. The numerical limitations upon the erection of extremely tall buildings are suggested by the fact that the Woolworth has been allowed to retain its valuable title for sixteen years. Within those years the people of New York have learned to look upon record making of that character with more of apprehension than of pride, says the New York World. The average height of Manhattan buildings now is not quite five stories; and the problems of transit are almost insuperable. Double that average by the erection of an easily imaginable number of skyscrapers, and those problems would be beyond the capacity of engineers to cope with by present-day methods.

The erection of the beautiful Woolworth tower was greeted with enthusiasm scarcely mixed with doubt. Propose a successor now and the comment is "Fine! But how are the people going to get home at night?"

Life insurance companies in the United States and Canada distributed $1,746,000,000 to beneficiaries last year. Death claims, annuities and matured endowments accounted for $947,549,000, the remainder representing payments for premium savings and lapsed or surrendered policies. But the entire distribution may be regarded as an accumulation of capital made possible by thrift and foresight, says the Philadelphia Ledger. It is impossible to estimate the amount of destitution and anxiety that was prevented by the return of this immense sum to its original contributors or their dependents. More and more life insurance is coming to be regarded in the light of a sound business investment, especially since its forms are so varied as to suit every individual requirement. Few persons nowadays need to be convinced of the duty of providing for their dependents, but not all realize that modern improvements in insurance have nullified the old saying that "it is necessary to die in order to win."

There is no reason why anyone should become unduly excited over the announcement that a college professor, flying in the faces of all the grammarians, has expressed his preference for "it's me" instead of the correct locution, "it is I." Prof. Kemp Malone of Yale has not been so bold as may appear at first blush, for he has been at pains to qualify his approval. He favors the use of "it's me" only in telephoning and in other colloquial conversations. The purists, therefore, who are concerned only in the preservation of written English undefiled, are not likely to go to war with the professor, says the Philadelphia Record. This shot that he has fired is not likely to be "heard round the world." And yet the guardians of pure speech will keep an eye on this Yale pundit for fear he may some time go too far.

It is forever being said that the young represent all progress; that it is to youth we must look for better things. But when we consider facts, we must admit that practically all real progress has been made by men of middle age or beyond. What truly new and useful thing may be credited to the young? All progress is the result of experience, and it is the professors rather than students who have had most experience with life, says E. W. Howe's Monthly. It is probable that no man has settled opinions until he is thirty; and his best judgment comes still later. A man of fifty does not know as much as he ever will know, and knows what he thinks.

There is a large class of divorced women in America who, in spite of what charge they may make in court, really get their decrees for the sake of alimony. It is surprising to see how placidly society in this country countenances the alimony-getting woman, writes Fannie Hurst in the Golden Book Magazine. She is socially accepted as well within her rights. Probably she is within her economic rights. Certainly her spiritual rights would seem to be not worth having.

With 6,000,000 hunting licenses taken out last year, as reported by a national authority, it will be seen that the great outdoors hasn't lost all its lure, especially since an even larger number of golfers remain to be heard from and since more actual walking is going to be done by hitch-hikers in the future than in the recent past.

Profanity is said to be on the wane in the army. It is attributed to the substitution of motor transports for army mules; but perhaps it is due to the doughboy's repugnance to anything that smacks of the effendiate.

Farm Association Honors Birthplace At 1928 Convention

For 10 days, beginning November 14, the Patrons of Husbandry will conduct their sixty-second annual convention in Washington as a "homecoming to the birthplace of the Grange." Below is the house in which the foundations of a farm fraternity were laid. Fred Brenckman (right), Washington representative of the Grange, and Scott S. McCloskey (left), his associate, have made arrangements for the convention.

Feeding the Mind

Brain food is almost as important as food to sustain our physical bodies. The modern world is a reading world as will be noted in any place where a number of people are gathered together. If there is reading matter available it will be in use. If not, the folks will be discussing some item of news or bit of information, probably having to do with their work or their condition of living. It is an old saying that "reading maketh a full man." That means a well informed and a balanced man, says the Wisconsin Agriculturist. The nature of the information and the accuracy of the balance depend largely on the kind of reading matter that is available. It is important, therefore, to see that the family is supplied with reading that is attractive as well as good. Most people read largely for diversion. If a story holds the reader because it is interesting and at the same time carries facts of value the reader will be more likely to absorb the facts than he will if he has to study and hail them out from a lot of dry details.

"Men are fed up with this masculinity stuff of women," declares Prof. Frank A. Parsons of the New York School of Fine and Applied Art in suggesting that if women looked more like women they would stand a better chance of winning man's approval. "Men," he says, "want more mystery, more hidden charm. It is coming. History has shown us that no fashion is of long duration. The swing of the pendulum is now toward the romantic. No longer will women be flat-chested or look like a cylinder. What woke them up? They have discovered that they weren't getting all the romance and attention they deserved. That is why they are deserting their mannishness."

It is a new popular spirit which is most required. Americans have built the huge cities of the last generation with a heedlessness of noise which strikes every foreign observer. In our hurry and strenuosity, our individualism and good nature, we tolerate deafening elevated lines, surface cars which grind and clatter, pile drivers, steam riveters, street cries, automobile honking and a wild variety of minor noises. It is no wonder that many people use the radio with careless license, says the New York World. We need a spirit which will recognize quiet as one of the fundamental decencies of life.

Unnecessary street noises, including those by persons going home from late parties, have been declared a menace to health by the British Medical association. In other words, those who won't go home until morning refrain from announcing the fact in discordant song.
